What are the different types of virtual learning that students will be engaged in?

- "Synchronous"-refers to when a teacher is working with students in real-time via an online video application.

- "Asynchronous"-refers to when a student is working on assigned work independently of the teacher. It is very important to note that asynchronous learning could be on the computer (e.g.; 15 minutes of Flocabulary or Reflex Math) or off of the computer (15 minutes of reading a physical book that RPS has provided as part of the curriculum).

- "Blended"-refers to when students experience both synchronous and asynchronous learning in a session.

- *This time will include a mixture of whole group, small group, and individualized instruction. As appropriate, teachers and interventionist will also provide support for students with IEPs and English Language Learners. As this is a "blended" instructional block, and students will experience a combination of "synchronous" also known as live instruction and "asynchronous" (not live) instruction. Asynchronous instruction may be on the computer (e.g., independent time on one of our educational software programs) or off the computer (e.g., reading a physical book, completing a set of math problems in a workbook, or practicing a new art technique).
